Hoi An Ancient town is located in Viet Nam's central Quang Nam Province, on the north bank near the mouth of the Thu Bon River. The inscribed property comprises 30 ha and it has a buffer zone of 280 ha. It is an exceptionally well-preserved example of a small-scale trading port active the 15th to 19th centuries which traded widely, both with the countries of Southeast and East Asia and with the rest of the world. Its decline in the later 19th century ensured that it has retained its traditional urban tissue to a remarkable degree.

The town reflects a fusion of indigenous and foreign cultures (principally Chinese and Japanese with later European influences) that combined to produce this unique survival.

3. My Son Sanctuary or Holly Land - The "Miniature Angkor Complex."

During the 4th to 13th centuries there was a unique culture on the coast of contemporary Vietnam, owing its spiritual origins to the Hinduism of India. This is graphically illustrated by the remains of a series of impressive tower temples in a dramatic site that was the religious and political capital of the Champa Kingdom for most of its existence.

My Son Sanctuary dates from the 4th to the 13th centuries CE. The property is located in the mountainous border Duy Xuyen District of Quang Nam Province, in central Viet Nam. It is situated within an elevated geological basin surrounded by a ring of mountains, which provides the watershed for the sacred Thu Bon river. The source of the Thu Bon river is here and it flows past the monuments, out of the basin, and through the historic heartland of the Champa Kingdom, draining into the South China Sea at its mouth near the ancient port city of Hoi An. The location gives the sites its strategic significance as it is also easily defensible.

The beaches in Da Nang:

My Khe Beach is located just 3 kilometres east of Da Nang City centre. It is renowned for its 10-kilometre stretch of white sand, running from Son Tra Peninsula to the Marble Mountains Da Nang. The beach was named by American troops during the Vietnam War and is now one of Vietnam's most stunning beaches.

Featuring in the CNN's top 50 beaches in the world, An Bang Beach in Hoi An, Vietnam has caught a lot of attention.

Unlike the vibrant atmosphere in other beach resorts, An Bang beach reflects a beauty of tranquility with cool blue water, long white sand, and light waves rushing to the shore.
